ong train of narrow cooped-up carwere in waiting. In passing through the depot I stopped in front of the news stalls and inspected some of the literature intended for the edification of railway oravelers. The books all bore suggescharacter. Most of them purported to have been written by Paul de Koch, and others of the same class. While seated in the car I surveyed some of the rolling stock running in and out of the depot. Most of the locomotives engaged in shifting in appearance were out slight improvements upon the en-gues in the National Museum at Wash-ington. Three Englishmen occupied the apartment with me. They a c, drank, smoked and slept during the four hours' run to Calais and manifested no interest whatever in the country through which the train passed. I was made to pay 82 cents extra for the privilege of riding on this car inasmuch as it contained one or two imitations of the conveniences found on the com-nonest trains on all railroads in the United States.

We arrived at Calais on schedule ime and embarked on the steamer for another trip across the channel I was here required to pay seven shillings additional to return to on this particular trip. The weather was fine and tue sea comparatively smooth, and he run across was pleasant. At Dover I took the waiting train and about 5 o'clock was again in old London. I bassed through several English cities

n the trip, among them Cha ham.

I spent the next three days mostly in walking through the main streets of the Euglish capital and in visiting the parks, museums, &c. My favorite walk was from Charing Cross through the Strand, Fleet street and other thorough-fares to London Bridge, St. Paul's, Cornhill, Threadneedle street and shrough the labyrinth of side streets, from which I watched the steady march ftens of thousands of human beings and the moving tide every other sort of vehicle (including the donkey drays mentioned by Dick ens). On other occasions I would take d flerent routes and walk through Pic cidilly, Oxford, Regent and other busy streets. I also enjoyed rides on the little steamers on the Thames, embarking at Westminster, near the Houses of Parliament, and landing on the stage at Loudon Bridge. These steamers look is though they have not been painted since they were built, and a number are antique in pattern. I saw some pearance, especially in the stern, the Joe Johnson and Phonix, boats used luring the early days of steam on the Potomac, or the picture of the steam which many of us in our childish tays have glared at and contemplated while squirming around on benches in

They have no pilot houses and some are still steered by tillers at the stern. The fare is cheap—one penny, or two cents, from one stage to another. You can make the trip to Greenwich for three pence, or six cents.

I seldom took a seat on London Bridge without thinking of some of the fiction connected with it. The reflection of Macaulay, regarding the New Zealander sitting upon a broken span viewing the ruins of St. Paul invariably entered my mind, and while watching the dense crowd I would ask myself the question, Can such a thing be possible? Yet Nineveh, Babylon, Thebes, Banlbek, Palmyra and other mighty i ies of l entered the crypt and stood by the sarcophagi of both, paying sixpence, or 12 cents for the privilege.

Everything seemed left-handed in England to me. Trains take the left hand track, omnibuses and other ve-hicles the left side of the street, the hicles the left side of the street, the baby carriages are the reverse of those in America, the children sitting with their faces to the nurses and their backs to the dashboards, some old men still wear knee breeches and twelve-year-old boys in jackets wear stovepipe hats, giving them a top-heavy appearance.
I often strayed through the busy streets after dark, and viewed London by gaslight. Every omnibus, cab, hansom and hack is compelled to carry two lights-one on each side-and a nght a look up the Strand is suggestive of an immense and endless torchlight procession. In the daytime the moving tide of omnibuses reminds one of a never-ending circus parade. The of a never-ending circus parade. The screets swarm with people until long af er midnight, or until the theatres have disgorged their immense audieuces, after which time the crowds grow thin until daybreak, when a mark-Alexandrians remaining in the city during est streets seem deserted. The stores, mation is resumed. During this interval an army of men and boys sweep the streets and gather up all trash, dirt, &c, while others wash the streets—nearly all of which are paved with wooden blocks—from plug streams. Hundreds Alexandria Bazette.

of youngsters are employed during the day in gathering trash, &c., from the stre-ts.

While there are thousands of home-less ones in London, I encountered but few beggars. Large numbers pass the nights in the streets, parks, or under doorsteps. I have seen women with their heads in their husband's laps asleep in the early morning hours in some of the parks, while I have watch-ed tagged boys, homeless and doubtless some who have no idea to whom they are related or by whom begot, drowsy and unable to keep their eyes open while stated on benches in the parks. The policemen would gently rouse them, it being against the rules to sleep in such places, and would show patier ce and kindness toward them. I will have but one more letter—that

I hope I have not tired the patient reader in this series. I had been possessed of a life-long desire to see some of the cld world, and while the trip to me has been interesting and greatly enoyed, I cannot expect all to enter into my tastes and enthusiasm. I had de-termined to desist after I had printed the first three letters, but at the earnest entresty of a number of friends I was induced to print those which

The True Remedy. W. M. Repine, editor Tiskilwa, Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Ex-perimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other re-medy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, e.c." It is idle to experiment vih other remedies, even it they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles fr e at E. L. Allen's Drug Store.

Those who believe chronic diarrhea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a suff rer from chronic diarrhora. ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by T. H. Janney.
